Robert Potts on Faculty for Osgoode Aboriginal Law Certificate Program

Date: July 07, 2015

Robert Potts joins an outstanding faculty of practicing lawyers and academics drawn from across the country for the Osgoode Hall Law School Certificate in Fundamentals of Aboriginal Law. The program, which will run from September 23 – November 4, 2015, will "concentrate on the core aspects of Aboriginal law, focusing not just on the law itself, but also those practical considerations that are key to understanding the rapidly changing legal environment."
