

United States Citizenship and Immigration Services Announces New Filing Option For Canadian TN Applicants

by Henry J. Chang

Originally published in Blaneys on Immigration (October 2012)

Henry J. Chang is a partner in the firm's Immigration Law group. He is admitted to the practice of law in the Province of Ontario and the State of California. Henry is also an Executive Member of the Canadian Bar Association National Citizenship & Immigration Law Section. A recognized authority in the field of United States and Canadian immigration law, he lectures extensively on the subject in both the United States and Canada.

Henry may be reached directly at 416.597.4883 or hchang@blaney.com.

United States Citizenship and Immigration Services ("USCIS") recently announced that, as of October 1, 2012, it began accepting Form I-129s (Petition for Nonimmigrant Worker) filed on behalf of Canadian citizens who are outside the United States and are seeking Trade NAFTA ("TN") status. TN status arises from the North American Free Trade Agreement and is available to certain professionals who hold Canadian (or Mexican) citizenship.

Prior to October 1, 2012, USCIS only accepted Form I-129 in connection with a request to extend a TN nonimmigrant's existing status or to change the status of an alien holding a different nonimmigrant status to a TN. Canadian citizens who were physically outside of the United States were not permitted to seek advance approval of their TN cases by filing a Form I-129.

Canadian citizens instead would apply at the time of entry, either at a land port of entry or at a pre-clearance facility located in a Canadian Airport. In such cases, the TN application would be adjudicated by United States Customs & Border Protection ("USCBP") immediately prior to the applicant's entry to the United States. Although this resulted in quick adjudications, applicants would not know whether they would receive their TN until they applied for admission.

Although the addition of an alternative process for the adjudication of TNs is welcome, given USCIS' less than stellar record in adjudicating other nonimmigrant categories (such as L-1 and H-1B), it is unlikely that USCIS will be overly generous in its TN adjudications. Nevertheless, in appropriate cases, the ability to seek a TN petition approval in advance of the alien's application for admission to the United States may be beneficial. ■