Blaneys to host ALAI Canada Luncheon on Copyright Law

Date: November 27, 2015

On November 27, Blaney McMurtry will host the International Literary and Artistic Association (ALAI) Canada's What's Wrong with Copying? luncheon on behalf of partner Andrea Rush. Guest speaker Abraham Drassinower, Associate Professor at University of Toronto's Faculty of Law, will analyze copyright doctrine to members and guests.

For more information, including registration fees & forms, please visit ALAI's page here.

What's Wrong with Copying? offers a new way to interpret and criticize existing copyright law and to think about the relation between copyright and digital technology as well as broader juridical, social, and cultural concerns.
