PRACTICE AREAS

- Family Law
- Wills & Estates

Marriage breakdowns and estate disputes rarely arrive as neatly packaged, single-issue problems. Sajila advises and litigates on a wide range of family law and estate litigation matters, including divorce, property division, spousal support, child support, parenting disputes, and the validity and interpretation of wills. These areas often intersect, such as when a dependant support claim is brought against an estate, or when a surviving spouse must choose between an equalization payment and their entitlement under a will. Whether navigating a separation or a contested estate, Sajila protects her clients' interests with clarity and purpose, and sees the whole picture when it matters most.

The subject matter of Sajila's practice is deeply personal. Sajila pairs empathy with integrity: she takes the time to understand each client's unique objectives and provides practical, tailored advice to achieve the best possible outcome. Her ability to communicate clearly and build trust makes her a compassionate advocate in complex and sensitive circumstances.

Strong results start with strong preparation. Clients and colleagues count on Sajila's rigorous research, organizational skills, and meticulous attention to detail, which allow her to build well-supported positions at the negotiating table and in court.

With experience in both family and estates law, Sajila offers clients a single trusted advisor for matters that cross both areas.
