

Blaney McMurtry LLP Announces Admission of Three New Partners - 2026

Date: February 02, 2026

Blaney McMurtry LLP is pleased to announce the admission of three exceptional lawyers to the firm's partnership: Rae Daddon, Deema Elshourfa, and Sarah Mills. Each brings a depth of experience and a client-focused approach that embodies Blaney's values.

Rae Daddon has been admitted as Partner in the Corporate group. Rae brings deep expertise in intellectual property and regulatory law, with a strategic, business-oriented approach that helps clients protect and maximize the value of their intellectual property while navigating complex regulatory frameworks. Her practice includes IP litigation and regulatory compliance matters for clients in industries such as pharmaceuticals, medical devices, and consumer products.

Deema Elshourfa joins the partnership in the Insurance group. Deema has developed a broad insurance litigation practice, representing clients in bodily injury defence, commercial liability, product liability, professional negligence, municipal liability, construction litigation and coverage disputes. Known for her pragmatic advocacy and creative litigation strategies, Deema regularly appears before courts and tribunals on behalf of her clients.

Sarah Mills has been admitted as Partner in the Employment group. Sarah maintains a comprehensive practice in employment, labour and human rights law, advising clients on wrongful dismissal, employment standards, human rights applications, grievance arbitrations and occupational health and safety matters. As a skilled advocate, she appears before arbitrators, tribunals and courts, and provides strategic counsel on complex workplace issues.

Blaney McMurtry congratulates them on this well-earned achievement and looks forward to their continued impact as partners.
