

Back to Bay Street: A New Chapter for Blaney McMurtry

Date: October 20, 2026

Blaney McMurtry LLP announces its move to Scotia Plaza, marking an exciting new chapter in the firm's more than 70-year history.

On October 26, 2026, Blaney McMurtry LLP will officially open the doors to its new offices at Scotia Plaza, one of Toronto's most iconic buildings, marking an important milestone in the firm's history and an exciting step towards its future.

For a firm whose story began at the corner of Bay and Bloor Streets in 1954, the move represents something of a homecoming. More than seven decades later, we are returning to the heart of Toronto's financial district, bringing with us the same entrepreneurial spirit, independence, and commitment to our clients that have defined Blaneys since the beginning.

Honoring Our Past, Investing in Our Future

Blaney McMurtry has always been a firm with a distinct personality. We have built our reputation on exceptional legal service, strong relationships, and a culture that values individuality, collaboration, and genuine connection.

As Toronto has evolved, so too have we. From our early beginnings to becoming a full-service law firm serving clients across Canada and beyond, our growth has been shaped by the people, partnerships, and principles that have remained central to who we are.

Our move to Scotia Plaza is a natural continuation of that journey.

After more than two decades in our previous offices, we recognized an opportunity to create a workplace that better reflects both the firm we are today and the firm we aspire to be tomorrow.

A Modern Space for a Modern Firm

The decision to relocate was about much more than finding a new address. It was about creating an environment that supports the way our lawyers and professionals work, collaborate, and connect.

Our new offices have been thoughtfully designed with our people and clients in mind, providing a modern, welcoming environment that encourages collaboration, supports wellbeing, and enhances the client experience.

Located in the heart of Toronto's business community, Scotia Plaza offers an exciting setting for the next stage of our growth, strengthening our connection to the city and the businesses, organizations, and individuals we serve.

While our surroundings may be changing, our approach to practicing law is not. We remain committed to delivering the high quality, personalized service our clients have come to expect, without losing the character and culture that make Blaneys unique.

Looking Ahead

Since becoming Managing Partner in 2022, one of my priorities has been to ensure that Blaney McMurtry continues to evolve while remaining true to the values that have shaped our success. Our greatest strength has always been our people. The relationships we build, the way we support one another, and the pride we take in our work are what distinguish this firm.

This move is an investment in those strengths and in the opportunities ahead.

As we prepare to begin this next chapter, I want to thank our lawyers, staff, clients, and colleagues for their continued dedication, trust, and support.

We are proud of where we have come from, excited about where we are going, and look forward to welcoming our clients and friends to our new home.

We may have a new address, but we are still unmistakably Blaneys.
